With such assis- Full-front Shirts. tance and counsel we shall hardly be able hereafter to mise the path of wisdom.

The Press seems pained that we are taking a practical and common sense view of the changed relation of things growing out of the slavery question and the war. It seems to think that a man is in duty bound for the sake of consistency to keep etraight on in an old path though an earthquake may have made a fathomless gulf where it formerly led.

"I heard you say, sir, not a year ago, that a man was a fool to attempt to cross that river with his wife and children in a carriage." "Y »u are right, sir: I said so." "And yet you now say that nothing is easier to do." "Right again, sir. There is now a good bridge over it." Some people appear to think that a man m st never change his position upon a great public question, however great may be the change of nees. Though all the facts which gave him his position and made it tenable and proper at the time may have undergone a complete transformation, vet he mustn't change correspondingly an lota of his views, but keep stolidly on just as though the old order of things hadn't altered a bit. This would be beautifully consi ent, wouldn't it? It would he wise, too, and statesmanlike of course.

If the charge of inconsistency made agains ne be a fault—the charge of keeping up with the events of the age and viewing every ques tion as it comes up in the light which facts and circumstances at the lime can upon it-we can and a great deal of it. We can point to many notable examples in days gone b, such, for nstance, as the course of Henry Cay upon the 1. S. Bank-in justi cation of our course. But there is no necessity of g ing so far back for L purpose. We can adduce the examples of Abraham Lincoln, Andrew Johnson, and of many more whose a thority the U ion Press all h dly call in question. It is u a record that Abrah m 1. coin did what at one time he said he had no with to do and believed he had no right to do! But in the progress of the war the circumetances radically changed and he changed his I be y to meet the altered condition of thing growing out of it. What was virtue in him it a; pears, is not virtue in us. The Press we beeve is an ardent admirer of W. L Garrison and Wend Il Phill ps. These two gentlemen were for twenty years avowed disunionists. As su h we gave them no quarter, and if the ircumstances were the same we would give them none now. They are now strong Union en, and we so pose the Press thinks they have been maistent in their "change of base."

We might refer in this connection to Edward Everett, to Daniel S. Dickinson, and in fact to nearly all the leading men in this great national sition they now occupy is diametrically opposite to that they maintained all their lives before he war. Aft r all, the Press should reco that we are merely human, and, unlike itself, falline. That should excuse na.

Most of the papers of all parties strongly condemn the trial of Bowles and Co at Iulianolis and the conspirators against the life of the President by military commission. And surely the condemnation is just and righteous. Nothing can possibly be clearer to our minds than that the accused in these cases were entitled, under the Constitution of the United States, to a civil trial by a jury of their peers. If that's not the meaning of the Constitution the Constitution is no better than a Delphic oracle, secretly meaning one thing and distinct-

We see that a few papers, settling up considthe murder of the President was a military crime to be tried by a military court, because, although the perpetrators were civilians, the victim was Commander-in-chief of the army and navy. This is an extraordinary position for men to assume: the idea involved in it is that, while a civilian, charged with k lling a civilion, is entitled to trial by jary, a civilian, accused of claying a litary man, must take his chances with a court-martial. The assum, tion is that the question as to what sort of court a slayer must be tried by depends upon the position or of this doct the would make it neomparable more dangerous to assail the life of any matary this ror of a soldier than of a civil officer of private citizen. They would have people in Fide a uniforms hedged a out with protect tuen that is denied to the rest of the community I'm aps they will try to inform as where in the Constitution they find anthority for this very ingular, odious, and hitherto nuheard of dis-

When the embodyment of the Southern Confederacy was caught in female apparel, a Federal officer raises the petticoat with his sabre. That's no way.

"Now, let's light up," said number two.
"Not yet, till you push the shnder to," relied the other, "or the glim 'il be seen. Then ou come and hold the box."

The flutter was quietly puth d to, and both, rollers meved away a few paces from the window by which they had entered. By the quiet was in which they walked, it was evident that they were either with, it shoes or had on Indiagnibler coverlage. Of their size or weapons we could see no line, and I begin to do it which her our position was an agreeable one, as I was armed only with a sword, a weapon, however, I knew how to use, whilst of my triend's means of effense or defense I knew mobiling. angels with dyed hair and rose-colore I poodio

PROCLAMATION OF THE GOVERNOR OF
KENTUCKY. COMMONWEALTH OF KENTUCKY,)

FEANKFORT, April 21, 1865. In view of the sad calamity which has fallen upon our country by the assassination of Abraham Lincoln, the President of the United States of America, it becomes us as a people to hum ble ourselves before a merciful God, and prav Him that the sin of our people, which has culminated in such great crime, be forgiven and we purged from our iniquity and be again re stored to His favor and to peace and unity amougst ourselves.

For this purpose Thursday, the 1-t day of Jnne, 1865, is hereby appointed as a day of last-On that day the people of Kentucky are inoked to suspend all secular business, and at the usual hour for service attend their respective places of worship, and engage in the solemn and
